Sarf of Kahf Ayah 3:

At first glance, you might think this word belongs to one of the eight big families because it starts with a meem. The meems we came across in those families were mu’s, not ma’s. So just because the word starts with a meem, does not guarantee that it is from one of the big families. If you listen closely, you’ll notice that it actually sounds like an ism faa’il from one of the small families like ناصِر or فاتِح:

We didn’t do the passive for this word because it simply would not make sense. There are some words in Arabic that do not have passives, and we will come to learn them later on.
